

Jenn Jannon is the national Mobilization Director for Working America, the 3 million member community affiliate of the AFL-CIO and the fastest growing organization for working people in the country. As Mobilization Director, Jannon works with organizers on the ground across the country to build local Working America activist teams, develop member leaders, and engage members in the planning and execution of the organization's multi-issue campaigns. During her eight years with the organization, she has helped expand Working America's membership base across the East Coast from North Carolina to Maine, overseen dozens of legislative and electoral campaigns, and helped to pioneer programs focused on creating deeper member engagement and activism across the country. Jannon, who began her career as an environmental activist, has worked in the progressive movement fighting for social justice for over 12 years, with a special focus on community organizing. Jannon graduated Magna Cum Laude from the University of Pittsburgh, with a degree in English Literature and certificate in Women's Studies. She hails from West Virginia, and has been a Pittsburgh resident since 1997.